Message from our President

When I wrote the letter for the March newsletter, I never imagined how much our daily lives would have changed due to Covid-19. Many of us found ourselves working from home or on limited travel schedules. Masks have become the norm to do just about anything and in many cases have become the new fashion statement. However, the farmer/ranchers and the industries that support them have had to step up and continue our work to supply the world with grain and protein. THANK YOU to everyone for all you do.

The adaptability of this organization and the industry were on display this spring and summer as we moved the PA Performance Bull Test Sale and the PA Finest Female Sale online. Thank you to all the consigners for your extra work and the buyers for your support.

To our juniors, we learned many life lessons as we worked to host the 2020 NJAS. Ultimately, we were not able to host it due to the restrictions imposed at the PA Farm Show Complex by our PA Governor. In response, we had a large contingent attend the Eastern Regional in Lebanon, TN and the National Junior Angus Show in Tulsa, OK. It was fun to be a part of these events. We were able to get up close and personal with SAV Resource 1441 in TN, thanks to Tom Burke and Scott Brown. Most expensive bull Scott has ever hauled. At the NJAS, our juniors' accomplishments were highlighted by Elizabeth Voight making it to the finals in Showmanship and Daniel Rohrbaugh being named Vice Chairman of the NJAA. Congratulations!!

A big shout out goes to Greg and Peggy McKean at McKean Bros. Angus for hosting a joint field day with the PA Angus Association, PA Cattlemen's Association, Center for Beef Excellence and the Penn State Beef Working Group. There were 150 cattlemen from 3 states represented with presentations on cattle handling, nutrition, on-line marketing, and genomics. It was great to see all these organizations working together for the common good of the beef industry. Thank you, Greg and Peggy.

As we look forward, we know that KILE and the 2021 PA Farm Show are not going to have live animal shows due to the restrictions placed on the PA Farm Show Complex by or PA Governor and State Health Department. Our Annual Meeting will probably look different due to restrictions on groups over 25. Please stay tuned to the next newsletter for more details. If you are interested in getting more involved with the PA Angus Association as a director or officer, please contact any director or officer. We will be putting together a slate of directors and officers for 2021.

Please be safe,
Chad Cash, President PA Angus Association

PA Angus Association and the PA Cattlemen's Association Joint Summer Field Day

The field day was held on July 27 at the farm of Greg and Peggy McKean, Mercer, PA. Over 100 producers from multiple states were in attendance. Speakers included Kelli Retallick, Angus Genetics Inc., Dr. Tara Felix, Penn State Extension Beef Specialist, Kaitlyn Swope, Director of Consumer Affairs of the Northeast Beef Promotion Initiative, and Dr. Ron Gill, Associate Department Head and Program Leader for Animal Science, Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service. Dr. Erskine Cash served as the MC. An excellent array of commercial exhibitors was also on hand. Masks were worn and social distancing was arranged along with plenty of hand sanitizer available for use.

A true highlight of the event was the collaboration of leadership between folks from the Beef Working Group, the Center for Beef Excellence, the PA Beef Council and the PA Simmental Association along with the PA Angus and PA Cattlemen's Association. Following the field day events, the Cattlemen's Annual Meeting and Awards Presentation was held. Award winners included the following:

Junior of the Year: Evan Kamp and Sierra Brown both from Berks County

Scholarship Recipients: Sierra Brown, Berks County, Madison Weaver, Lancaster County, Macy Walason, Bedford County, Jamie Wallace, Centre County

Seedstock of the Year: Chad Cash and the Cash Family Angus

Commercial Producer of the Year: Steve Paul, Susquehanna County

Industry Service Award: Dr. Terry Etherton, Department Head, PSU Animal Science

Feeder of the Year: Darrel Martin, Lancaster County

Bob Hay Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association Hall of Fame Award – Bob Hay, Somerset County

An enjoyable day was had by all thanks to the graciousness of Greg and Peggy McKean for hosting such an event.

Message from our Junior President

Well, what a year 2020 has been so far! Needless to say, this has not been the year that we are typically accustomed to as an Association. Even with the challenges we have had presented to us, there are many things that our juniors have been able to accomplish throughout the year.

A handful of juniors headed down to Harrisonburg, VA to compete at the Mid-Atlantic Junior Angus Classic. All juniors had an extremely successful weekend, including Grand Champion Bred and Owned Bull, exhibited by Kolton Grim and Reserve Grand Champion Bred and Owned Bull lead by Karli Berkheimer. In the showmanship ring, Karli Berkheimer and Connor Grim walked away with Champion and Reserve, respectively. To end out the weekend, Karli Berkheimer was named Premier Junior Breeder!

A small delegation of juniors traveled down to Tennessee for the Eastern Regional Junior Angus Show. Congratulations to Kolton Grim on exhibiting Reserve Grand Champion Bred and Owned Angus Bull!

Since last year, the juniors have been working extremely hard to host the 2020 National Junior Angus Show in Harrisburg. However, due to complications with COVID-19, the show was moved to Tulsa, OK. Fortunately, several juniors were able to make the trip to Tulsa to exhibit cattle and represent the state of Pennsylvania. Congratulations to Haley Sweitzer and Elizabeth Voight for serving as the showmanship delegates.

As we move into the fall, we are still uncertain on what the year will hold and when we will be able to meet in person. However, I have full faith and confidence that our association will continue to grow and accomplish amazing goals.

Respectfully submitted,
Kaitlin Bell

Focusing on Fertility Webinar Announced

By Jera Pipkin | American Angus Association
10/09/2020

What are fertility haplotypes? What does the research tell us?

We are excited to present cutting-edge research on fertility haplotypes through our latest Angus University webinar. Improving reproductive function is an important step for both the Angus breed and the cattle industry as a whole. As we grow our knowledge of the bovine genome through genomic technology, haplotypes can be identified that affect many traits. Haplotypes that affect fertility have been identified in dairy breeds since 2011. The strategy shows great promise and as a result, the Association and AGI have been researching haplotypes that can affect fertility in Angus cattle.

Dr. Duc Lu, geneticist with Angus Genetics Inc., has performed extensive research surrounding these haplotypes and what they mean for Angus cattlemen and women. Lu has countless experience in analyzing genomic data, including being a leading asset in high-density genotype data, developing new methods for imputation, and researching interactions of genomic regions. Lu completed his Ph.D. from the University of Guelph, Ontario.

Regional Manager Update

Greetings Angus Breeders,

I hope everyone had a productive summer, I know for some it was super dry or they received more moisture than they knew what do with. Nevertheless, all the fall calves are hitting the ground or close to it. Calving season is surely welcomed by most to serve as a distraction. They bring a small slice of joy in the form of a hyped-up group of babies running around and are surely welcomed at my house.

Having something to look forward to right now with everything going on in the world is a welcome sight. I would be remiss if I did not share a passage with you that has helped me lately. Jeremiah 29:11 "For I know the plans I have for you," Declares the lord, "Plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope." With the world on edge, it is always healthy to remember God has already laid the path before our feet. We just must continue walking forward with a positive attitude. I hope everyone has a wonderful fall and looking forward to visiting with you in the future. Thanks,

2020 Angus Convention Simplified to 137th Annual Meeting

Annual event modified to accommodate COVID-19 restrictions in Kansas City

The American Angus Association® has made the difficult decision to reformat the 2020 Angus Convention originally scheduled for Nov. 7-9 in Kansas City, Missouri. Considering the current gathering restrictions created by COVID-19, modifications were necessary to balance the health of attendees and the need to conduct the business of the Association. The event will be a two-day meeting on Nov. 8-9 and will continue the long tradition of holding an annual meeting of delegates that has occurred since the inception of the Association in 1883. The National Angus Tour and trade show portion of the event have been canceled and the number of educational sessions will be reduced but virtual options for members and attendees will be offered.

“The health and safety of Association members, guests and staff remains our top priority,” said Mark McCully, Association CEO. “While no technology can replace the value of an in-person gathering, we believe offering virtual attendance options this year is the responsible thing to do. We plan to offer a modified format, allowing for both an in-person annual meeting and a virtual educational experience for those who would like to join from home.”

Socially distanced educational sessions, an awards dinner and fundraiser will be hosted on Sunday, Nov. 8. Guests who register online can partake in the virtual educational sessions held throughout the two-day event. Association leadership will provide several updates and educational workshops. Each day will be headlined with keynote speakers to inspire attendees to advance their operation.

The American Angus Association Board of Directors candidate forum and state caucuses will proceed as scheduled and will be webcast for those not in attendance. The 137th Convention of Delegates will be held at 10 a.m. on Monday, Nov. 9. If members are unable to attend in person, they can attend virtually, and voting delegates will have a virtual participation option.

“The decision to modify the event and the business meeting was not taken lightly,” McCully said. “We still look forward to seeing our members in Kansas City, and if not, we hope you join us online. Give the office a call if you have any questions regarding your registration.”

The Association knows its membership is resilient, and the COVID-19 pandemic has affected us all in different ways. Offering a modified format for this industry-leading event aligns with our heritage of innovation and progress, and the Association thanks its membership for cooperating during these trying times. For more information regarding the 137th Annual Meeting, please visit www.angusconvention.com, where there is an updated schedule and information about registering or modifying a registration.

Another billion in the books
Pandemic impacts Certified Angus Beef fiscal year, but sales momentum is strong
by Kylee Kohls
October 7, 2020

Blindfolded on a rollercoaster, this year in the beef business was filled with unexpected upside-downs and lurches. Whether a restaurateur in New York City or a rancher in Nebraska, the impacts of COVID-19 make 2020 a ride no one will soon forget.

For the first time in 16 years, the Certified Angus Beef® brand (CAB®) reported lower annual pounds sold for its fiscal year that ended September 30. Still, 2020 was one of strong performance and the fifth consecutive year with sales of more than a billion pounds across 51 countries. Those global sales of 1.175 billion pounds were down 6%, or 75 million pounds. “We’re prepared and positioned today to support our partners’ business recovery and growth as we move forward,” says CAB President John Stika. “We’re fortunate to be in good shape because of the combined effort across our community.”

Supply set to meet demand

Despite market disruption and volatility, Angus cattlemen remained focused on producing high-quality beef. In 2020, a record 35.9% of all Angus-influenced cattle met the brand’s 10 quality specifications at licensed packers. “Just a decade ago we were celebrating a 23% acceptance rate,” says Paul Dykstra, CAB assistant director of supply management and analysis. “It’s been a pretty steady uptick in both quality and Angus-influence in the cattle available for consideration.” The 5.54 million cattle certified into the brand were only 1.9% fewer than 2019. That number was just 3.5 million in 2010. “That demonstrates a clear, concerted effort. Cattlemen are more focused than ever on what demand is telling us about beef quality,” he says. “The brand is widely recognized as the target for successful producers who want to participate in the upper echelon of the market.” Licensed packers returned more than $1.7 million dollars in premiums to cattle feeders each week for CAB-qualified carcasses, incentivizing that pull-through demand back to cow-calf suppliers. “In a year when retail beef prices spiked and uncertainty was a theme, producers heard what consumers said again and again: quality still matters,” Dykstra says. A consistent and growing supply enables licensed processors, distributors, restaurateurs and retailers to deliver. Stika says the brand is focused on meeting demand, though some segments may serve consumers differently moving forward.

Riding the rails

Last October the fiscal year began by working through lingering disruption from the packing plant fire in Kansas. That challenged the brand’s international business and the ability to secure retail feature activity moving into the holidays. Foodservice, on the other hand, was on record pace. With a combination of manageable prices and availability in January and February, sales across all segments strengthened, landing both months among the top 10 for all-time CAB sales. March finished in the history books’ top 10, too. While the month saw foodservice and international business decline by 40% due to the onset of COVID-19, consumers transitioned their buying patterns. Retail business spiked, all but offsetting the declines in other areas. At the peak of the pandemic in April and May, foodservice and international sales were down 72% and 64% respectively. Retail business was up almost 44%. June brought continuity, reestablishing itself in the supply chain, and moved into fall with two months of sales above 100 million pounds. Putting all 12 months together, retail had a record year, increasing by 12.3%, while foodservice and international sales were down 22%. Managing through widespread crisis is not unprecedented for the company. When BSE disrupted the beef industry in 2004, brand sales declined 80 million pounds, a fairly similar volume decrease for 2020. “In 2004, total sales were roughly 43% of what they are today, so that 80-million-pound loss in business translated into a 13.5% decline in both tonnage and resources compared to the 6% we’ll manage through this year,” Stika says. The brand remains stable with a steady supply and projections for continued growth, he says.

Closing the books on 2020, Stika is grateful and optimistic.

“For as much as we have enjoyed the past, our focus cannot be on saving the past,” he says. “Rather our focus will be on changing, evolving and being more flexible so that we can really excel for our partners in the future, regardless of what it looks like.”

That’s a promise designed to deliver dollars all the way back through the system.
