Early Fall 2026 Newsletter

Across the President's Desk

Where has the summer gone?! I'm writing this note a few days later than our Secretary, Cathy, would have liked, which reminded me to appreciate the job she does holding our Association together and informed. Hopefully everyone who has an opportunity, will thank her for everything she does.

For those who missed our Annual Meeting at the Breeder's Show, you missed the "coolest" meeting we have had for a few years, in the air conditioning at the fire hall! The crowd was great, the awards abundant, the food delicious, the Royalty was in attendance, the Auxiliary Auction was bountiful and the cattle competition at the show was energizing. Our "America 250 Breeder's Show" was a weekend loaded with intense "Angus Fellowship!" Mark your calendars to make it next year.

The PA Juniors have been busy this summer at competitions across the country and have done an outstanding job representing our state as they develop their life skills. Follow them on Facebook !

I hope to see everyone at our PA Fall Sale at Joseph Angus in Connellsville, PA, on September 26, 2026.

Sincerely,

Dale

Pennsylvania Angus Association Annual Meeting

The Annual Meeting of the Pennsylvania Angus Association was held Friday, July 3rd at the McConnellstown Firehall in Huntingdon, with 86 adults and 16 youth in attendance. The air conditioning was well received with the HOT temperatures we were experiencing across the state. Following our delicious meal catered by The Farm, the business meeting was held.

Officers and Directors serving for the 2026-2027 year are: Dale Rains, President; Cheryl Fairbairn, Vice President; Cathy Rohrbaugh, Secretary; and Brad Bishard, Treasurer. Elected to a 3-year Director term was Chad Cash. He joins the current Directors of Will Nichols, Gene Trowbridge, Denton Grim, Adam Kauf and Chris Jeffcoat.

Reese Tuckwiller, American Angus Assoc. Regional Manager, gave an update on cattle markets and an amended rule for parentage on file for cow flushes. He noted three herds were recognized as Data Driven Herds at the Bronze Level: Pennsylvania State University, Beaver Creek Farms and Barzak Angus.

Tammy Weaver, PA Angus Auxiliary President, recognized her Officer Team: Sarah Sparks, Vice President; Hannah Miller, Secretary; and Sue Mayle, Treasurer. The Auxiliary supports scholarships, PA representatives to the Nat'l Junior Angus Show and the PA Angus Breeders Show. Tammy presented Madison Bowen with the Girls Scholarship.

Madison Bowen gave an update on the PA Junior Angus Assoc. and the Royalty Court, who attended shows this year and handed out ribbons.

Allison Schmuck, PA Angus Breeders Show Chairwoman, said there were 57 head at the Breeders Show. She thanked the sponsors for the 2026 show. Next year's Committee will be Gene Trowbridge (Chairman), Kiersten Baker and Michelle Brown. The 2027 show is scheduled for June 17-19.

Chad Cash reported the Pennsylvania Bull Test had 61 bulls average $6,865 with 2 bulls selling for over $11,000.

Gene Trowbridge is coordinating the Pennsylvania Finest Female Sale, to be held September 26 at John Joseph's farm. There will be 50 lots, with 30 secured as of the Annual Meeting. Tom Burke attended the Annual Meeting to garner additional lots. A meal will be provided the night before the sale as well as on sale day. There will also be a semen sale fundraiser to benefit the Pennsylvania Angus Association. Thank you to Denton Grim and Dennis Byrne for coordinating.

Deric Horting and Cheryl Fairbairn presented the Annual Awards: Breeder of the Year – David Bell; Seedstock Producer of the Year – McKean Brothers; Promoter of the Year – Cathy Rohrbaugh; Stewardship Award – Steve Upperman. The Horting Family presented the Family of the Year to Sandy Sweitzer. The Conrad Grove Memorial Award was presented to Chris Jeffcoat.

Cheryl Fairbairn recognized the Breeders Show Judging Contest Winners. Madison Bowen was the Senior Champion and Overall Winner. Emily Walsh won the Junior Division and Allison Schmuck won the Adult Division.

Thank you to the Nichols Family – Donald, Karen, John and Will - for working behind the scenes to secure our meeting location and to ensure our dinner went smoothly. We appreciate you!!

2027 Membership Dues

Our dues are on a calendar year cycle, however, we are still receiving renewals for 2026. In order to “do better” with our collections, we are giving the membership the opportunity to pay your dues earlier so that you aren’t receiving your first notice in December. December is a busy time of year....the holidays, prepping for calving, and dealing with the cold weather around the farm. You can pay your dues now and not worry about it for another year!!

Members receive 4 annual newsletters, have your name and farm information published in our annual membership newsletter edition, as well as on our website. You also have access to participate in association sponsored sales.

Junior Members...take note that the PA Junior Angus Association no longer has lifetime dues. At the Breeders Show meeting, the members voted to have annual dues only. This is because it’s administratively burdensome to track membership with their birthdates and email addresses provided may be outdated over the course of a life membership. In addition, this newsletter is sent to all PJAA members, who may not have Angus cattle or are no longer involved in agriculture.

CELEBRATING 60 YEARS OF MARRIAGE ON OCTOBER 8!!

JOANN AND JOHN HAUSNER
JDH CATTLE CO.
5550 Pine Hill Road, Dover PA 17315

John and Joann have been part of the cattle industry for more than 60 years and active in the Angus industry for over 40 years. Throughout the years, they have exhibited cattle at local, state, and national shows, earning numerous honors along the way. As longtime members of the Pennsylvania Angus Association, they have helped strengthen and promote the Angus breed through their dedication, hard work, and willingness to serve others.

Whether lending a helping hand, offering advice, or sharing a friendly smile, John and Joann have made a lasting impact on so many in the cattle industry. They are truly special people who are respected and appreciated by all who know them.

We would like to take this opportunity to congratulate them on 60 wonderful years of marriage and thank them for their many years of commitment to the Angus industry. We wish them continued health, happiness, and many more years together.

*Happy 60th Wedding Anniversary
Love, Your Family

Causes of Vaccine Failure in Beef Cattle

Vaccine failure can be reduced by understanding cattle status and using good vaccination management, like using the right vaccines at the right time.

Fall vaccinations are a vital part of a successful health program for beef herds. This includes preconditioning programs for feeder calf sales as well as maintaining an effective health status in the cow herd. Sometimes you hear a producer remark about cattle or calves that get sick anyway following being vaccinated. The usual answer is "that vaccine was no good." There is a lot more to vaccine failure than just the stuff that comes out of the bottle.

The failure of a vaccination program to prevent disease can be outlined in three parts: the animal, the people, and the vaccine. As described by Thayer (2011), there are "broken animals." Despite administration of a good vaccine, the cattle will still get sick. The causes are numerous, but are usually confined to the environment for the animal, the parasite and other health status, stress, and nutrition status. Healthy cattle, primarily calves that are under some form of stress from the environment, will not respond properly to vaccines. This includes extremes in weather, dehydration, or other environmental factors. Stress from transportation, weaning, castration, comingling, or simply handling can reduce the ability of the animal to develop the desired immunity to a disease from the vaccine because these activities are additive sources of stress. When weaning calves this fall, either vaccinate ahead of weaning or wait several days until the stress has subsided. Combine as few other management activities as possible with vaccinations. When receiving cattle, the 24-hour rest period before handling new cattle will allow the transportation stress to subside and the cattle to rehydrate. Cattle that are already sick will not respond well to vaccines. If there is some indicator the cattle are sick, first use a treatment for the disease to correct the problem. This feature also includes heavy parasite loads. Cattle obviously in a malnourished state will not respond well to vaccines. The immune status of young cattle can also be decreased by maternal antibodies for very young calves. Generally, calves under 3 months of age are still under the protection of the colostrum antibodies received at birth. The immune system in these animals either may not be fully developed or may be protected from the vaccine challenge and not respond. Cattle beyond 90 days from their last vaccination begin to decline in the level of their protection.

Vaccines also fail because people do not use them correctly. Understanding the causes of stress already outlined should be considered when handling the cattle and planning vaccinations. The protocol for the use of a vaccine is on the label of the product and should be followed exactly. Vaccines that are not mixed correctly, usually modified live vaccines, will not work under the best of conditions. Mix only the amount of vaccine you are going to use within the next hour, keep a cold cooler at the chute side to hold the mixed product, do not shake the mixed product harshly, and use a transfer needle for mixing. Don't ever wipe the top of a modified live vaccine bottle with an alcohol swab. Never mix different vaccines in the same syringe. Storage of any vaccines in the pickup is another source of failure. Vaccines may become overheated or freeze, or be exposed to sunlight. Mix, handle, and store vaccines according to the label. A good general rule is to use a new needle for each animal. Needles used on multiple animals can distribute diseases through the herd. This includes, but is not limited to, bovine leucosis virus for which there is no vaccine. Sometimes the vaccine just does not get into the animal properly. The desired route of administration is outlined on the label, with subcutaneous being the preferred method. Products requiring intramuscular (IM) administration can fail from leakage at the vaccination site. Also, by not injecting the product deep enough into the muscle to allow vascular contact, which generally results from using the wrong size needle. In most cases, an 18-gauge needle 1½ inches long should be used for IM vaccinations. Needles that are too short do not deposit the product correctly and those too big cause injuries and bleeding that will disrupt uptake of the vaccine.

The main reason the vaccine itself fails is because it is the wrong product for the disease. Most of the time, however, vaccines contain most of the major serotypes for the disease they are intended to control. If there is a disease issue in the herd, use the best vaccine for that disease by making sure you know from tests what disease is present. A vaccine can fail when the disease challenge is greater than the level of immunity, and this occurs most often when proper boosters were not given or the stress challenge occurs shortly following administration and the immunity has not developed. Again, the label will describe the timing and the need for boosters. Some boosters are recommended for multiple times each year, depending on your particular level of exposure. Timing of vaccination is critical in some cases. For example, pinkeye and scours vaccines must be administered ahead of a challenge. Modified live vaccines for cows should be given after calving and before the breeding season starts to prevent abortions. Vaccinations and boosters will be needed prior to transportation, weaning, and other high-stress activities for feeder cattle if the stress is going to occur 90 days following the last vaccination.

No vaccination program will prevent 100% of disease challenges, but the odds can be improved by understanding the status of the cattle, using good vaccination management technique, and using the right vaccines at the right time.

PA Junior Angus Update by Kinleigh Grim

Our Pennsylvania Junior Angus members were kept busy this summer break while attending multiple breed shows. In mid-June juniors attended the Eastern Regional Show in Hamburg, New York and made PA quite proud with the success they had. Without skipping a beat, they loaded the animals up on yet another trailer ride and made a trip to Huntington, PA for our very own Pennsylvania Angus Breeder's Show and caught success yet again! However, the next trailer ride was a little bit more of a distance but members were willing to spend a few more hours in the truck in order to have a grand slam week in Louisville, Kentucky!

The week was packed full of contests, activities, and great angus cattle. Congratulations to all the members who made the long trip! You represented PA very well! Here is a play by play of the week!

Monday- Juniors competed in the fitting contest and judging contest. Conner Grim, Kolton Grim, Jacob Fortenbaugh, and Kinleigh Grim were 1st place fitting team! Another congratulations to Jackson Manwiller who was 1st place in the Junior B age division and Kinleigh Grim who was 2nd in the judging contest!

Tuesday – Exhibitors competed in the showmanship contest (Novice, Juniors, and Intermediates). Multiple members were called back in their respective showmanship heats. A special congratulations goes to Kinleigh Grim who was Reserve Grand Champion Junior B showman!

Wednesday- The Bred & Owned heifer show took place! Madison Bowen's heifer was slapped Reserve Champion Junior Yearling Division 1! Congrats Maddie!

Thursday – Kinleigh Grim's PGS heifer won Champion Intermediate Bred & Owned Female! Dalton Brown and Conner Grim also enjoyed competing in the National Showmanship contest.

Friday – Macey Fessler's steer won his class of Bred and Owned Steers and Kinleigh Grim won Reserve Grand Champion Bred & Owned steer. Congrats ladies! Closing ceremonies took place that night as well and the photography contest results were revealed. Madison Bowen won in three categories and one of her photos placed fourth overall!

Safe to say the members enjoyed their stay in Louisville, Kentucky! Keep a lookout for our October meeting that will now be held virtually. More details to come!
